But suppose you could sit down with a young child and calmly do a craft project together in a nurturing and learning environment.

Imagine that the child is attentive and enthusiastic about the project, they understand what they're trying to make, and you both share fun and giggles over the craft. Imagine that they had such a great time with you that they tell everyone they talk to what they made and how much fun they had with you.

Consistently spending time like that with toddlers and preschoolers probably sounds like a pipe dream, right?

If you had the most fun, age-appropriate, engaging crafts at your fingertips you could have hours of quality time with any toddler or preschooler. You wouldn't have to assemble everything for the child or work your tail off to keep them engaged. You could turn each craft project into a learning or skill-building activity. You could be reminded what a blessing children are instead of wishing you could find a rock to crawl under.

It could take you hours of searching online and cost you a small fortune in kid crafting books before you find any craft projects that will work with a toddler or preschooler -- meanwhile you keep trying crafts that leave you totally frustrated as your child looks for other entertainment -- like painting their arms or cutting their bangs.

But instead of knocking yourself out trying to come up with great craft ideas for little kids, you can have a bounty of ideas at your fingertips with one outstanding book called:

Rhoda from Georgia says Little Kid Crafts For All Seasons is a "Gift from above." Click play to listen!

Not only is this book designed for crafting with toddlers and preschoolers, the children that benefit the most from crafting, but...
