

Published based on Stansted Parking Spot Security

Stansted Parking Spot Security

The last thing you want when returning from your trip is to find your car broken into or even missing. One of the important things to consider is how safe your car will be when you leave it. When you leave your car at a Stansted Parking spot, thieves know that it is unlikely that they will be disturbed by the owner coming back, as you have just got on a plane. So it is important to make sure your choice of parking is secure, and should also have CCTV monitoring. You can make your car less attractive to thieves by making sure your car is securely locked, with all valuables (especially satnav or phone) hidden away in the boot or passenger glove compartment.

You can also find this article published on Stansted Parking Spot Security, and on the tag pages car, glove compartment, Plane, satnav, Security, Stansted Parking.