The Republic Of Ireland: A Memorable Green Adventure Is Waiting For You

When you think of Ireland, the color green comes immediately to mind. After a visit to this beautiful country, you will be thinking of castles, rocky cliffs, delightful people and so much more. While Ireland is known the world over for its famous beer, you will have to have a passport to visit one of their famous pubs in person. The scenery and culture of Ireland are meant to be shared with the whole family so it is vital that each member of your family has a passport. You see, kids passport are attainable at your nearest passport agency and detailed information concerning the process is easily available online.

The fascinating history of Ireland dates back centuries and don't be surprised if ever place you walk takes you back in time. Learning about the rich heritage of Ireland can be done through many guided tours or by independent exploration of the various medieval castles and museums. One place you will not want to miss is Blarney Castle. This is where you will encounter the famous Blarney Stone up close and personal. The legend surrounding this famous rock deals with communication. Supposedly, if you kiss the Blarney stone, you will never be at a loss for words again. You will find yourself being labeled verbally eloquent for the rest of your days. Another interesting visit can be made to the site of the passage tomb in Newgrange in County Meath. During the winter and summer solstices, almost miraculously, the oversized burial mound covering an entire acre is lit up by the sun. While difficult to describe, once viewed, it will not be forgotten.

Now you can't visit Ireland without spending some time in an authentic Irish pub. Irish bartenders will be happy to treat you to some of the most famous beers in the world as you enjoy the sight, sounds, and local people. The Irish people are warm and friendly and sharing daily joys and problems in these drinking establishments is a rich part of Irish culture. But remember, international travel demands that you have a passport so if yours is lost or damaged, passport replacement can be accomplished quickly and easily with the use of your home computer or by visiting a local passport office.

An activity that is enjoyed by all who visit Ireland is simply exploring this beautiful land. You can wander around quaint Irish villages, hike across meadows and mountains or explore an ancient castle but be assured that in Ireland, the road of adventure is very simple to find. Many who choose hiking seek this experience at the Mountains of Mourne and Rathlin Island which provide some of Ireland's most beautiful landscapes.

The heart of Ireland can be found with a health beat in the city of Dublin. This large city provides each visitor with an active night life scene or a relaxing beverage at one of its many street side restaurants. Beer lovers won't want to miss the Guinness brewery. One of the most famous Irish beers, Guinness has been made in Dublin for over 250 years and after your brewery tour, you will be treated to a free pint of Guinness at the Gravity Bar. Shopping at its finest can be had on the streets of Grafton and Henry and after you finish making your purchases, night fall will make the theatres, pubs and night spots in this charming city irresistible.

No greater vacation can be had by your family than one to Ireland. Whether with a group of friends or with your family, this beautiful land is spellbinding but you have to have a passport to get there. And your babies passport or a passport replacement can be acquired easily at your local passport office and requirements are available online.
